DETAILED ACTION

1. The rejections using Matsuki et al. given in sections 2 and 4 of the office action mailed 22 February 2006 are withdrawn in view of applicant's arguments in the paper filed 25 May 2006. The examiner agrees that that the reference only teaches edge covering or through hole penetration in the alternate in Figures 8A and 8B. New rejections are given below using a reference that does not have this defect.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wagenblast (U.S. 6,503,585).

Wagenblast teaches in Figure 6 a channel structure made of a profile member (element 1) that is joined to a cover profile member (element 4) by an injected plastic which both penetrates aligned holes in a flat flange structure and encases the edge structure of the flat flange structure (element 19). The profiles can be made of metal (col. 2, lines 35-55). The encapsulation may be by injection molding (col. 8, lines 20-25). The instant invention claims two metal profiles that are joined by plastic molded through aligned holes in flat flange portions of the profiles, the plastic also encasing the edges of the flat portions. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have selected metal as the material of the profile members in Figure 6 of the reference and injection molding as the method of encapsulation in view of the teachings of the reference that the profile members can be made of metal and that encapsulation can be formed by injection molding.

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wagenblast (U.S. 6,503,585).

Art Unit: 1772

The examiner takes the selection of profile joining methods and materials in the above rejection to be from such a small group of options as to constitute an anticipation.

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 1 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

7. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to William P. Watkins III whose telephone number is 571-272-1503.
